SUBJECT:

I strongly concur in your welcome memo on clandestine planning analysis. Part of the response that I made to the original memo was that we ought to select finite jobs and work around those so far as determining what was required. I think there would be some concern about the extent to which an OR type might contribute since this is particularly an area in which I think the Agency people feel especially qualified. In the technical areas, I think that the actual hardware solutions will strongly reflect the capability of different contractors and in this area the matter of small equipment, I suspect there are rather substantial advantages in going in different directions.
